WAR SUMMARY OF THE LATEST EVENTS

The German assault on the French lines west of the Meuse does not prosper. Wednesday the centre of the conflict was shifted to Hill 287. After a violent bombardment the enemy tried to overwhelm the French positions at the foot of the hill, but the attack was completely repulsed. The Paris midnight report states that the French troops carried out a small offensive action against the enemy on the western slope of Dead Man's Hill. Some sections of a German trench was captured, together with 62 prisoners, and two machine guns. A Berlin report claims that the German positions on Hill 304 were extended.

It is announced that the British army in France and Flanders now holds ninety miles of the front. If there is any truth in the statement of Major Morahit the military critic of the Berlin Tageblatt, that the number of French troops engaged in the Verdun campaign is 800,000, and that "this figure represents half of the entire forces which France still has at her disposal for active fighting," the British army will have to take hold of an even larger part of the western battle-front. Major Morahit's assertion that France has only 1,600,000 men left capable of manning the trenches seems an absurd one, but France's losses have been very heavy and her available military strength at the outbreak of war was probably not much more than three and a half million men. The presence of a million and a half British soldiers in France might be fully explained were the French casualties known.

An official British analysis has been published of the German casualty lists up to the end of April. This does not mean that the losses recorded are all that have been sustained by the Germans. The French Record Bureau showed recently that the bulk of the German casualties in the Champagne drive of September and October were not recorded in the casualty lists till two or three months after the sanguinary struggle there.

It is reasonable to assume, therefore, that a large proportion of the casualties at Verdun have not yet been officially reported in the German lists. Of the 2,822,079 casualties recorded by Berlin up to April 30, the number of killed or who died of wounds is placed at 664,552. The missing, most of whom are dead, number 197,004. Deaths from sickness numbered 41,325. Prisoners total 137,798; severely wounded, 385,515; wounded, 234,417; slightly wounded, 1,023,212, and wounded remaining with their units, 117,956. These figures include the losses of the Saxons, Bavarians and Wurtemburgers, but not of the German naval and colonel forces. The dead and missing, most of whom have doubtless been buried by the Allies as unidentified dead, number slightly over 900,000, or almost a third of all the recorded casualties. This a higher proportion than is shown by the British lists, and statistical experts are of the opinion that the German lists do not record all who are wounded, as the British lists do. Taking the German figures as they are presented, however, it would appear that if Germany began the war, as it is believed she did, with about six million trained soldiers, she has lost absolutely by death or capture 1,040,679, or over a sixth of her original strength, she perhaps half a million more of wounded men who will never be able to fight again. The youths and middle-aged men called up to replace the wastage are not of a quality to be compared with the million and a half young Germans "written off."

The aeroplane as a means of carrying relief to beleaguered forces seems to be valuable. The British airmen attached to General Gorrings's army were not able to save Kut-el-Amara, but they dropped an average of 1,000 pounds of food a day into General Townshend's position between April 11 and 29. A thousand pounds of food—probably in the form of flour—was not enough to give even one good meal a day to 15,000 people, but the incident proves that on the western front, where there are a hundred aero-

EXECUTORS' NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

In the estate of Samuel Hamby, deceased.

Notice is hereby given pursuant to Chapter 121, of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1914, Section 56, and Amending Acts, that all persons having any claims or demands against the estate of Samuel Hamby, late of the Town of Napanee, in the County of Lennox and Addington, gentleman, deceased, who died on or about the 18th day of April, A.D. 1916, are required to deliver or send by post prepaid to T. B. German, Napanee, Ontario, solicitor for John W. Hamby and Mary Creighton executors of the last will and testament of the said Samuel Hamby, deceased, on or before the 31st DAY OF JUNE, A.D. 1916, their christian and surnames, addresses and descriptions, with full particulars of their claims or demands duly verified, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them.

And further take notice that after the said 31st day of June, A.D. 1916, the said Executors will proceed to distribute the assets of the said estate amongst the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims or demands of which they shall then have received notice, and will not be responsible for the said assets, or any part thereof so distributed, to any person or persons of whose claims or demands they have not received notice at the time of the distribution thereof.

11 and 29. A thousand pounds of food—probably in the form of flour—was not enough to give even one good meal a day to 15,000 people, but the incident proves that on the western front, where there are a hundred aeroplanes for every one on the Tigris, it would be exceedingly difficult to starve a besieged town so long as aerial relief could be given. The investing force would have to be supreme in the air before its siege lines could be regarded as complete.

The statement is made in a despatch from Athens that the Germans are replacing numerous 17-inch guns on Saloniki front. This would indicate their intention of holding the Vardar Valley by defensive lines instead of attempting to capture Saloniki. There was a sharp action Wednesday at the village of Mayada, which was occupied by the Germans after a bombardment. They were forced to evacuate the village by a French counter-attack.

COLEBROOK.

Pte. Melleville Lee is slowly recovering at his home here from a severe attack of pneumonia contracted while in training at Tamworth.

Council

May
Council met on Monday as per adjournment. May in the chair.

Present—Reeve Osborne, Councillors Denison, Paul, Graham and Robinson.

The Fire Company asked a vote of $25.00 on their expense, to be used in paying for two of their members signed up for Overseas Service one death.

Request granted. A communication was received from S. Herrington, town solicitor to the request of Boulton to be allowed to place a gas on the sidewalk in front of his business. His opinion was negative to the proposal, stated that it was a very precedent to establish.

Ordered laid on the table. The question as to the main roads leading into and how to make them came in for lengthy discussion members of the council. A Councillor was of one opinion, but the manner provided the money came in thought and considerable following resolution was passed by a unanimous vote.

Moved by Coun. Graham by Coun. Denison, that a prepared and presented to asking them to sanction the $10,000 to construct a water bound macadam road: Dundas street from street, easterly to the G. T. Dundas street from Dorchester to the corporation limits; Centre from Dundas street, north the G. T. R. tracks and out to the limits; Camden road Thomas street northerly corner.

The vote on the above was as follows:

BANCROFT.

A most distressing affair on Wednesday when Mr. Wilcox committed suicide himself.

About eight o'clock she the store house adjoining to procure a hat for her. Not returning promptly I went out to see what was her. He found the door to the inside and looking in window was horrified to see a man from a beam. He ran the front of the building gained admission and cut down but life was extinct not absent from the house ten minutes.

The suicide was most She stood on a chair and a rope around her neck and strangled to death.

The deceased was of a disposition, and no reason, that she had been in poor some time, can be assigned a terrible deed.

Belgian troops have seventy miles into Germany.

Eighteen thousand pounds were dropped by aeroplanes el-Amara for the British against the siege.

---but here it is
---the ideal car
---at the ideal price

Things that were impossible yesterday are to-day's accomplished facts.
Somewhere in the world someone with special knowledge, special experience, special equipment, gets ready and then startles the world by accomplishing the seemingly impossible.

Almost everyone said that a complete automobile of beautiful design, fine finish, the ideal small, light, economical car, built with quality materials and absolutely completely equipped, could not be built to sell for $850.

And but for Overland special knowledge, special experience and special equipment, it probably would still be one of the impossibilities instead of an accomplished fact.

Probably no other organization in the world can produce the quality and efficiency equal of this car to sell at anywhere near so low a price.

Certain it is that no other organization is doing so.

And no other car ever produced seems so exactly to suit the requirements of so varied a lot of people.

People of wealth, people of modest means—

People of long automobile experience—

People who never before owned a car—

All find in the small, light $850
Overland their ideal car—

It has the beauty, comforts, conveniences, power and complete equipment which everyone wants—

Yet it is inexpensive to buy and economical to operate.

See the Overland dealer and get acquainted with this car.

But act now, as this car stands alone and the rush to own them is amazing—delayed action is almost sure to mean a long wait for delivery.

 hardiness and drought resisting qualities of Buster, and a better plant maker than either.
 Well suited to sections subject to late frosts.
 The other varieties we grow are, Buster, Cres-

ANOTHER COMMERCE RAIDER.

Fabre Liner Reports Being Chased by German Craft.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The arrival here Sunday of the steamship Venezia, of the Fabre Line, with the news that she had been chased and fired upon by a German commerce destroyer caused considerable uneasiness in shipping circles.

The Venezia was formerly a passenger steamship plying between Marseilles and New York, but since the war she has been converted into a freight vessel, and runs between Bordeaux and New York.

While the commander of the Venezia, Captain Boniface, refuses to discuss the pursuit of his ship by the commerce destroyer, one of the crew volunteered the information that the enemy appeared suddenly while they were off the Azores and about three days out from Bordeaux. He says the strange vessel loomed up without any flag showing, and bore down on the Venezia.

The raiding craft kept up with the apparent intention of getting closer to the Venezia, but the absence of her flag made Captain Boniface suspicious, and he made preparations for a sudden dash. The approaching steamship signaled to the Venezia to slow down, but Captain Boniface made out several guns on her deck and was convinced she was a German commerce destroyer and signaled for full speed.

As the Venezia started to bear away a shot passed over her. This was followed by another, which dropped close to the Venezia. Before a third shot was fired the Venezia had increased the distance between her and the commerce destroyer, so that the efforts to overhaul her proved unsuccessful.

For several hours the commerce destroyer pursued the Venezia, but the French steamship had the superior speed and managed to leave the pursuer far behind, not sighting nor hearing from her on the remainder of the voyage.

It was learned that the raider was evidently a merchantman which had been converted into an auxiliary cruiser.

NEW CAMP CHOSEN.

Military Area Near Barrie Will Be Called Camp Borden.

TORONTO, May 9.—Ontario is to have a new military camp that will far surpass Valcartier in every respect as an ideal place for the training of troops for overseas service. It will supersede Niagara and other camps in the western part of the Province. The new camp will be at Pine Plain, in Simcoe County, some ten miles from Barrie, where the Government has acquired a site of 20,000 acres, approximately 28 square miles. Construction work is to be started immediately and rushed with all possible speed. Everything must be completed and ready for the reception of 25,000 troops by June 1 next. This was the definite announcement made by General Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, Sunday night on his return to the city after making an inspection of the property. The new training grounds will be called "Camp Borden."

It is about equi-distant from Barrie and Alliston, west and south from the village of Angus. The soil

POPE URGES MEDIATION

Benedict XV. Sends an Appeal to President Wilson.

Lord Robert Cecil Replying to German Expressions of a Desire for Peace, Says Entente Allies Must Go On Until the Object of Crushing Militarism is Achieved—Defence of British Blockade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A new appeal for peace from Pope Benedict to President Wilson was delivered at the White House Saturday by the Papal Delegate, Monsignor Giovanni Bonzano. The Pope urged the President to maintain his neutrality and to do his utmost by mediation to bring peace to Europe. Coming only 24 hours after the German note, in which similar hints appear, officials decided that the message was based on appeals from the Central Empires.

The President did not see Monsignor Bonzano, and it is unlikely that he will heed either the appeal of the Pope or the obscure hints of the German Government. He notified the belligerents early in the war that he was ready to act as mediator on the request of any one of them, but he has refused to interfere of his own initiative or on suggestions from outside sources.

The President read with careful attention Sunday the portion of the note touching on peace. Unusual significance was attached to that part of the note because it was taken to indicate officially that recent speeches of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg before the Reichstag were intended as notices to the world that Germany was ready for peace on certain terms.

The note says: "The German Government, conscious of Germany's strength, twice within the last few months announced before the world its readiness to make peace on a basis safeguarding Germany's vital interests, thus indicating it is not Germany's fault if peace is still withheld from the nations of Europe."

It was thought Sunday the German note might possibly draw forth something from the Allies. The papal plea could well pave the way to such a course.

Lord Cecil's Answer.

LONDON, May 9.—Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, and Parliamentary Under-Secretary for

MOSES AND SANITATION.

Ancient Laws as Effective as Modern Rules of Hygiene.

There has been gathered a collection of facts to prove that the sanitary laws of Moses were not only on a line with the modern rules of hygiene, but in some cases in advance of them.

The Jew, thousands of years before Christ, settling in a semitropical country, was forbidden to eat pork or shell-fish, and milk was designated as a source of contagion. In the Talmud a method of slaughtering animals was prescribed which is acknowledged today in our markets as the most sanitary.

Five thousand years before Koch gave to the world the results of his researches in bacteriology the Mosaic law pointed out the danger to man from tuberculosis in cattle, but did not forbid infected poultry as food. It was only a few years ago that German specialists discovered that fowl tuberculosis was harmless to man.

The Mosaic law also enforced the isolation of patients with contagious diseases and the burial of the dead outside all cities. These hints the Gentile world did not fully accept until a century or two ago.

The wise lawgiver prescribed not only fasting at certain periods of the year, but the removal of all families in summer out to camps, where for a time they could live close to nature. Many of the laws of Moses were prescriptions intended for the health of both mind and body.

"Greatness" on the Film.

It is never wise to predict that the miraculous will not occur. There may come a time when careful critics will award to some movie players the treasured adjective "great." But at the present time certainly any such use of the adjective would be absurd. The movie drama has not yet shown itself capable nor given the slightest indication that it ever can show itself capable of affording an actor the chance to do great work.—Walter Prichard Eaton

TWO AEROPLANES LOST.

Naval Air Craft Are Missing, Says
British Government.

LONDON, May 9.—The German Admiralty reports: "British submarine E-31 was sunk west of Horn Reefs (on the Danish coast) by artillery fire of a German ship on May 5."

This is untrue, the British Admiralty reports, the E-31 having returned safely to its base. The claim of the German Admiralty that one British aeroplane was destroyed and another captured by torpedo boats off the Flanders coast is admitted by the British.

The Germans admit that the Zeppelin L-7, which has been reported by the British as destroyed in the North Sea, failed to return from a re-connoitring trip.

The British communication says:
"With reference to the official German report published Sunday, it is a fact two naval aeroplanes are missing. The body of Flight Sub-Lieut.
H. R. Simms has been picked up at sea and Observer Sub-Lieut. C. J.
Mullens is missing. A lifebelt has been picked up in the vicinity.

"Regarding the aeroplane reported captured by the Germans, the names of the officers concerned are Flight
Sub-Lieut. Arthur T. N. Cowley and Sub-Lieut. Ronald Minge.

"The German claim that British submarine E-31 was sunk by gunfire is untrue, the vessel having returned safely to her base.

LONDON, May 9.—Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, and Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in a statement given to the Associated Press, deals with the charges against Great Britain and Germany's avowed desire for peace as contained in the German reply to the note of the United States on submarine warfare.

After recalling alleged inhumane practices by Germany, through employment of submarines, Zeppelins, poisoned gas, and high-explosive shells, Lord Robert, on the issue of peace says:

"Of the German peace overtures, if such they are to be called, I will say little. It was only in last December that their Chancellor declared that we believed it to be in our interests to attribute falsely to them peace proposals. Yet the German Government now says that twice within the last few months Germany has announced before the world her readiness to make peace. Which is the truth?

"It may be that the Germans want peace. If so, it is because they fear defeat. It may be only that they want to appear peaceful.

"For us it matters not. Our attitude, at any rate, is unchanged. We drew the sword unwillingly. We shall sheathe it gladly, but we should be untrue to our trust, we should be betraying civilization, if we abandoned our task until we have re-established in Europe the supremacy of law, the sanctity of treaties, and the right of all nations, great and small, to live their lives, to fulfil their destinies, free from the intolerable menace of Prussian militarism."

The statement is a defence of the British blockade on the sea. In reference to the German claim of the British intention to starve millions of women and children, "who by their sufferings will force the victorious armies of the central powers into ignominious capitulation," Lord Robert quotes remarks of the German Chancellor last month in the Reichstag, in which the declaration was made that Germany had sufficient food for all with a surplus, and which concluded: "We have not run short of anything in the past, nor shall we run short of anything in the future."

Statements by Prince Bismarck and Count Caprivi, dealing with the rights of belligerents to cut off the food supplies of any enemy, are also contained in the communication as a defence of the British stand.

The Justinian Code.

The Justinian code was, as the name implies, a compilation and rearrangement of existing laws rather than a body of new laws. Justinian's commission authorizing the work was given A. D. 528. To the code the emperor added the pandects, the Institutes and the novels. These compilations were known as the Corpus Juris Civilis, or body of civil law. The Justinian code is still the basis of all French law, and many of its principles are even to this day operative in the state of Louisiana.

Ring Weighed a Pound

One of the largest rings is the one which was presented to President Franklin Pierce in 1852 by some citizens of San Francisco. It weighed one pound. The hoop of the ring is cut into squares, on each of which was shown some scene in the history of California. The bezel, bearing the seal, has engraved upon it the arms of the state of California, surmounted by the stars and stripes of the United States and the name of Franklin
Pierce. This ring was valued at $2,-

Jealousy Causes Three Deaths.

PONZANO, Italy, May 9.—Captain Bettolo, a member of a leading Rome family, in a fit of jealousy Sunday slew his wife and committed suicide.

Captain Bettolo returned from the front and sought the Abbe Giacomo Serra, of whom he was jealous. Arriving at the parish house of the Abbe, Captain Bettolo fired through the windows, one of his bullets killing the Abbe Nicolo Richetta. Abbe Serra was not hit. Afterward the captain returned to his home and killed his wife and then committed suicide.
He was a nephew of the late Admiral Bettolo, once Minister of Marine.

POSTAGE STAMPS

Study Their Backs and You May Come Across a Prize.

TWO CLASSES OF MARKINGS.

One of These Is Accidental and the Other Is Intentional, but Either Adds to the Interest of the Specimen—A Curious Nicaraguan Issue.

It really is interesting to study the things which may be found upon the backs of stamps. One might group these into two classes—accidental and intentional. In the first class would come "double printings" and "offsets." In this instance by double printings we refer to those stamps which were accidentally printed upon both sides of the paper. These are very rare. By offset we mean where too much ink was used or the sheets laid upon each other while too wet, so that the color from the face of one sheet came off on the back of the one next to it.

These double impressions and offsets are found in the surcharging of stamps as well as in the original printings. Offsets are comparatively common and vary very much in intensity of color and completeness of design. In the early stamps of Great Britain the color of the stamp has changed the gum, or perhaps the paper, to a beautiful blue, and, as there was little or no color on the portrait in the design, this head appears in white upon a blue background on the back of the stamp. This is called an "ivory head" and is very interesting.

Before we take up the matter of what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we might say that the paper upon which such stamps are printed usually shows best from the back. It may, of course, be either thin or thick, white or colored partially or completely through. It may have silk threads here and there like the United States revenues first issues on silk paper or silk all through like the later issue (1873) revenues, or it may be "granite" paper, like certain stamps of Austria, Switzerland and Japan. Again, there may be embedded in the paper silk threads running the whole length of the sheet, as in certain issues of Bavaria, Wurttemberg and especially Switzerland, where threads of many colors may be found.

In considering what is intentionally placed on the backs of stamps we notice first the gum. This can easily be found in many shades—white, yellowish brown, dark brown, pink or rose. Some of the old German states especially have a fondness for pink gum.

The second thing to look for, intentionally placed on the backs of stamps, is something in the nature of a protection against cleaning or counterfeiting. Under this head would come grills or embossings. Excellent illustrations of these are found on our own stamps and again in those of Peru. Watermarks, while not placed on the backs of stamps, show much more plainly there and may be included

As a protection against counterfeiting and also as a means of identifying stolen stamps Spain employs a set of serial numbers. The postoffice department keeps a list of the numbers on the backs of the stamps shipped to every postoffice, so that if one of these is robbed the authorities know and can identify, if found, the stolen stamps by the numbers they bear.

Thirdly, we consider those stamps where the printing on the backs was intentional, but placed there for other reasons than to prevent counterfeiting. In some respects these are the most interesting of all. We wish to call attention to three special instances. Portugal in 1895 issued a series of stamps commemorative of the seven hundredth anniversary of the birth of St. Anthony of Padua. There are four designs in the series. But what interests us in this connection is the curious fact that upon the back of each stamp there is printed in tiny blue letters a Latin prayer. This series was also surcharged for use in the Azores.

When we study Nicaragua we are bewildered by the multiplicity of surcharges, especially after about 1900. But in 1911 matters came to a very bad pass. There were no more postage stamps, so the government took some revenue stamps, already once surcharged, and upon the backs of these revenue stamps printed a surcharge which made them good for postage. So here are revenue stamps with postage stamps on their backs, or postage stamps with surcharged revenue stamps on their backs. Either way they are very interesting. There were three values—5, 10 and 15 centavos—so made. New Zealand furnishes us another type of interesting backs. Here we find a canny postoffice department coining an honest penny by selling the space upon the backs of its stamps for advertising purposes. The stamps of the issue 1882-91 may be found telling the merits of breakfast foods, patent medicines, soaps, etc. A complete collection would contain a good many varieties. We do not know how many.—St. Nicholas.

Wheat and Flour.

It takes about four and a half bushels of wheat to make a barrel of flour, but different wheats vary from this estimate. A hard wheat produces more flour to the bushel than a soft wheat. Generally speaking, a bushel of wheat will yield from 70 to 75 per cent of flour of different grades, distributed about as follows: Patent flour, 55 to 60 per cent; bakers' flour, 8 to 10 per cent; red dog, 5 per cent, making approximately 70 to 75 per cent of flour and leaving 25 to 30 per cent of feedstuff—that is bran, shorts etc.

LONDON'S BRIDGES.

The First of These Historic Structures Named a Juvenile Game.

Can you remember when you were a little tyke and played "London bridge is falling down" during recess or at children's parties when the girls were not too much dressed up? The game always ended with a vigorous pull of the opposing sides, with the result that usually both forces went down in the dust. Did you know that that childish game was one of the genuine antiques and that it could trace its origin to a real historic fact? The first bridge over the Thames, at the headwaters of navigation, about half a mile above the Tower, was so old that the story of its construction is lost in a maze of myths. Its fall, however, is a matter of record. It happened on the 16th of November, 1010, and it was the result of the most devastating storm and the most terrific and sudden flood that London had ever seen.

That first bridge was entirely of wood. It was not rebuilt for almost a century, and the second bridge consisted of stone arches, resting on deep piling. It was forty feet wide and almost a thousand feet long. Houses were built along the bridge, also resting on piling, until the bridge looked like a city street. These buildings were swept away by fire in 1693. In the middle of the bridge was a draw, with a tower, on which were exhibited the heads of Englishmen who were executed for treason against the kings of England. The present London bridge was begun in 1824, a little way above the old one, and it is of such massive construction that there is little danger of its ever "falling down."

TACT AND A SPEECH.

Why Disraeli Changed His Mind About Speaking in French.

In Lord Redesdale's "Memoirs" there are some stories of Lord Beaconsfield. The following is particularly characteristic:

"There was one amusing incident in connection with the Berlin congress. One day it was announced that on the morrow Lord Beaconsfield was to address the assembled statesmen and that he would speak in French. Lord Odo Russell, who was a master of tongues, heard this with no little alarm, for it was well known that Lord Beaconsfield's French was very much of the Stratford-atte-Bowe type. Lord Odo, always clever, went to him and adroitly turned the conversation on to the next day's conference. Lord Beaconsfield announced his intention of speaking.

"In what language do you propose to speak?" asked Lord Odo.

"In French," was the answer.

"I am afraid that will be a very great disappointment to the colleagues," said Lord Odo. "You see, they know that they have here in you the greatest living master of English oratory, and of course they are longing to hear you."

"The great man smiled his pleasure, and the speech was delivered in English. Lord Odo was wont to declare that he never knew whether Lord Beaconsfield took the hint or accepted the compliment."

As a protection against counterfeiting, one may call attention to the numerals upon the backs of the early issues of Greece, for there are many errors and varieties to be found in these old Grecian stamps.  COMFORT means!

Just look at that illustration a second time. Look at the roominess of this new Studebaker SERIES 17 FOUR—the individualized COMFORT that's built into the car for every one of the SEVEN passengers it carries.

Not a detail has been overlooked that will make the car easier-riding. The front seats, for example, are divided—and they are also adjustable—that is, they can be moved fore or aft to fit the passenger's wishes.

In the tonneau, roominess is especially evident—lots of room for five full-grown people. The rear seat is wide and deep and luxuriously upholstered with the finest straight-grain, semi-glazed leather. And everywhere roominess, convenience and a host of COMFORTS have been built into the car.

This new Studebaker is the most powerful 4-cylinder car on the Canadian market within hundreds of dollars of its price—the biggest car that any such price as $1225 ever bought—but on COMFORT alone it stands as the GREAT value of the year. Come in and see this splendid "Made in Canada" Car.

THE PLAY IN CHINA

It Is a Curious Mixture of Noise, Costume and Strut.

DIN FROM START TO FINISH.

It Begins When the Curtain Rises and Continues Until the Last Scene Ends the Agony—The Property Man a Mighty Important Personage.

I was all tired and haggard out when I reached China, so I thought to myself, "I'll just go to a Chinese theater and spend a quiet evening. I won't understand anything, so I can doze off when I want to and come out as refreshed as a sprig of celery."

"What time does the play begin?" I asked as the guide led the way to the gallery, for in a Chinese theater the farther away you are the more aristocratic. No Chinese of caste would be caught in orchestra A.

"It have begin," he answered. "How could that be?" I demanded, for it was still a few minutes of 8.

"It begin yesterday. It run two piece days. It No. 1 play."

And so I found out. The better the play the longer it lasts. A Chinaman doesn't think he is getting his money's worth unless the play lasts a couple of days. Some of them continue a week. They consider a play that lasts only a night a curtain raiser and tag it on to a real play just to try it out.

The Chinese believe in noise. A theater isn't a theater to them unless it has a ladies' annex to a boiler factory just off stage. The hammering begins when the curtain goes up and continues until it falls. I soon found out that I erred seriously in coming to a Chinese theater to sleep. A person might drop off for a few minutes in a car shop, but he could never get near the knitting up of the raveled sleeve in a Chinese theater.

Chinese acting consists of the actors coming on again in another outfit of clothes. They come on, whirl a baton a couple of times and exeunt. While they are off another delegation of actors arrive with another collection of clothes. They whirl their clubs a few times and file out Indian style as another lodge arrives. There is no more expression on the face of a Chinese actor than on a punching bag.

When they want to show that the intrepid hero with a handful of men is trying to take a fortification against a vastly overwhelming enemy the property man hurries around in front of the hero with a black cloth stretched over a frame. This is the fortification, even though you can see his fingers gripping the breastworks. The dauntless hero marches across the stage, stops before the impregnable barrier, casts his eagle eye over it, draws his long sword and rips it asunder with one fell blow, the property man holding the swaying corner, while the hero marches through to victory. The intrepid hero stops to explain to his subordinates how he was able to accomplish the feat, while the property man drags the ramparts into the wings and begins pinning them up for the attack

A LITERARY RIDDLE.

Why Does a Woman Write Differently From a Man?

Why is it that you can always tell a story written by a man from one written by a woman? I saw the thing put to a rather severe test within the last month, with results that were startling.

Ten men and women, all of whom do considerable novel reading, had had dinner together. One of the men asked the question I put at the top of these paragraphs. He was in his own home and went to some trouble to prove that the sex of authors is an easy thing to determine.

Giving to each of the nine others a pencil and piece of paper, the host proceeded to read extracts from twenty different books and magazines, selecting parts in which proper names would not identify the story. As he read each person wrote down his guess as to whether the author was a man or a woman.

Of the 180 answers made by the nine persons to the twenty tests all but eight were correct. As he kept the books from which he read concealed it was impossible to get aid with the eye.

But, although everybody guessed right almost every time, no one could still give a good definition of the conundrum. Why does a woman write differently from a man?

INFLAMMABLE BOMBS.

Substances Used in the Making of These Deadly Explosives.

The incendiary bomb used by the Zeppelin aircraft, as a rule, is conical, of ten inch diameter at the base, wrapped round with tarred rope and having a metal handle at the apex. The base is a flat cup, into which a pierced metal funnel is fitted, having the ignition device and handle fitted at the top.

The funnel is generally filled with thermit. The latter, upon ignition, generates intense heat and by the time of the concussion has taken the form of molten metal, having the extraordinary high temperature of 5,000 degrees F. The molten metal is spread by the concussion.

Outside the funnel is a padding of a highly inflammable or resinous material, bound on with an inflammable form of rope. The resinous material creates a pungent smoke.

There is generally some melted white phosphorus in the bottom of the cap, which develops nauseous fumes. In some cases celluloid clippings are added, and occasionally a small quantity of gasoline.

Buildings.

Buildings are contrivances which surround trouble, despair, pleasure, entertainment, business, indolence and plumbing.

Buildings are built with brick, mortar, cement, wood, steel and mortgages. It also takes sand to build buildings, but they should not be built on sand.

Some buildings are public and some are private. Public buildings are usually very imposing, and usually the public has been imposed upon to build

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ANTIQUITY OF THE HARP.

The Instrument Was in Use in Egypt 3,000 Years Ago.

The very first authentic record of the harp, predating even the Greek myth of Orpheus, although it is very hard indeed to assign dates to myths, is obtained from the discovery of Egyptian harps, not unlike the modern in general design, bearing dates of 3,000 years ago, or 500 years before Craftine made his harp of willow. Old Irish chronicles are full of interesting references to the harp and its functions. Let us select the comparatively modern date of 718 A. D.—modern indeed when we consider Craftine, who was a contemporary of Sappho— which contains these lines from a poem describing the tragic death of Curlo MacDaire, king of West Munster, at the period of the Incarnation. They are addressed to Ferceirtne, the king's chief minstrel:

Make amusement for us, O'Donnob, Because thou art the best minstrel in Erin
At pipes or tubes, and at harps, and at poems,
And at traditions, and at the royal stories of Erin.

This extract will serve to show the versatility of the harper of the MacDaire. He seems to have taken the place which a whole opera company fills at the present day, including the orchestra and the composer of the music and the writer of the libretto.

plish the feat, while the property man drags the ramparts into the wings and begins pinning them up for the attack in the next act.

In a Chinese play there are no girls,
their parts being taken by boys, speaking in a high, quavering voice as if something were too tight. When an actor wants to show that he is old he ties on a beard that comes to his waist.
The beard works off to one corner and hangs grimly by one string, but the audience doesn't worry about that.
They know that he is an old man because he has a beard.

I was constantly alert to figure out what kind of show it was. When I first got there and saw the constant change of costume I thought that it must be a musical comedy, but after studying it more closely I saw that it was a farce. When they began to kill people I came to the conclusion that it was an operetta. Later, when the hero found his wife in another man's arms,
I decided that it was a problem play.

The most important person in a Chinese show is the property man. Alongside him the lead sinks into insignificance. He has charge of the show.
The show opens when he says and closes when he wants to go out to a tea house. He keeps his properties where they are handy—down stage by the proscenium arch—right out where the audience can lean over and almost touch them. To know what is coming next all the audience has to do is to look over and see what the property man is getting ready.

Hour after hour the play continued without an intermission. Midnight came, and the actors seemed to be just getting into the spirit of the play.
When I remembered that the play had been running for two days I felt sure that the next five minutes would see the last costume, but the show still continued.

I clung desperately on, determined to be in at the finish when the last hot, feverish kiss was pressed on the upturned lips, but it didn't end that way.
It ended when the leading man came rushing out with a cheese cutter and killed twelve men in breathless succession, the maimed and wounded thoughtfully crawling to the wings to die, thus giving the leading man the center of the stage until the envious property man came up and spitefully yanked the curtains to.—Homer Croy

Some buildings are public and some are private. Public buildings are usually very imposing, and usually the public has been imposed upon to build them. Private buildings are frequently private in name only, especially if occupied by several inquisitive women.
Such buildings are made up of a large number of stories and most of them are without foundation.

Rats, mice, fires, earthquakes and rent collectors are buildings' worst enemies.

Long Days on Uranus.

Uranus can be claimed for a British planet. It was discovered at Bath in 1781 by the elder Sir William Herschel, the musician who became private astronomer to George III. Uranus is so distant from us and has an atmosphere so dense that little is known about the rotation, position of the axis or number of the satellites. But the inhabitants, if they exist, may console themselves for living in a temperature approaching zero with the fact that they can seldom be dunned for income tax, because their year contains more than 30,000 days.—London Mail.

The Bull of Perillus.

Perillus of Athens is said to have invented for Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigen-tum, 570 B. C., a brazen bull which opened on the side to admit victims who were to be roasted by the fire which was built underneath. The dying groans of the sufferers resembled closely the roaring of a mad bull. Phalaris greatly admired the invention and by way of test roasted the inventor first. Later the populace rose in rebellion and burned Phalaris.

Reptiles Are Shortsighted.

According to a naturalist, serpents, in spite of their reputation for alertness, are very shortsighted. Some of them cannot see more than a yard or two in front of them. Other reptiles are similarly deficient in sense of vision, and the authority asserts that a crocodile cannot see a man at a greater distance than six times its own length. In respect of hearing, many reptiles are even more deficient than in sight.
Some serpents are deaf, the boa, it is said, being unable to hear any sound.
The term "deaf adder" consequently expresses a fact. In one respect some reptiles show singular acuteness. They have an unerring instinct for water and in dry weather will travel straight to it, even when they are at such long distances that the mystery is how they could possibly become aware of its locality.

The Seal's Sense of Smell.

The sense of smell, possessed by the seals is very strong and will invariably wake them out of a sound sleep even if you come upon them ever so quietly to the windward, and you will alarm them in this way much more thorowly, though you be a half mile distant, than if you came up carelessly from the leeward and even walked in among them, they seeming to feel that you are not different from one of their own species until they smell you. The chief attraction in these animals is their large, handsome eyes, which indicate great intelligence. They are a deep bluish black, with a soft, glistening appearance, and the pupil, like the cat's, is capable of great dilation and contraction.

The Spinning Mule.

Samuel Crompton, a boy of sixteen, copied the best features of the spinning machine invented by Hargreaves and Arkwright, added to them some of his own and, after three months of anxious and secret experimenting, produced the first spinning mule, so called because it was a kind of hybrid between Hargreaves' jenny and Arkwright's water frame. The raw apprentice lad was, however, no match in cunning for the cotton lords, who soon found out the secret of his new machine and shamelessly robbed him of the fruits of his ingenuity. Many years afterward, it is true, they used their influence to secure for him a parliament grant of £5,000, but he was then a broken hearted and disappointed man, to whom the money came too late to be of any real service.

Alaric, the first of the barbarian from the city (during the first siege, in

A. D. 408) 5,000 pounds weight of gold, 3,000 pounds weight of silver, 3,000 silken robes, 3,000 pieces of scarlet cloth and 4,000 pounds of pepper. In order to furnish a portion of the ransom demanded by the invader it be-

LENNOX AND ADDINGTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The last meeting of the Historical Society for this season was held on Friday evening last. The president Mr. C. M. Warner, returned to town for the occasion and presided with his usual grace. He briefly reviewed the work for the past year and expressed the keen regret he experienced in being obliged to terminate his active participation in the work of the Society. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Honorary Presidents—W. J. Paul, M.P., and C. M. Warner.

President—W. S. Herrington.

Vice-president—Mrs. A. W. Grange.

Sec. Treas.—Rev. A. J. Wilson, Dr.

R. A. Leonard, Mrs. M. C. Bogart, E.

R. Chickley, J. M. Root, Rev. J. H. H.

Coleman, J. W. Robinson.

At this stage of the meeting Mr. J. W. Robinson suggested that the vice-president be called upon for a few remarks. Mrs. Grange promptly responded and very much to the surprise of Mr. Warner presented him with an address, on behalf of the members, and a set of six volumes of the Oxford Survey of the British Empire. After briefly replying to the beautifully expressed and appreciative words of the address Mr. Warner introduced Dr. Falconer, president of the University of Toronto. The learned speaker chose as the subject of his lecture "The New Allegiance" and selected as an introductory text to his discourse a quotation from a speech of President Wilson in which the latter commented with regret upon the failure of the great democracy to the south of us to assimilate and make good and loyal citizens out of a certain class of its population. The present attitude of the hyphenated Americans, the lecturer argued, should be a warning to Canadians to be more cautious in the selection and treatment of our immigrants. For one hour the large audience which filled the hall listened with the keenest interest to the eloquent and distinguished visitor. The unanimous opinion of all present was that this was one of the most scholarly and inspiring addresses ever delivered in Napanee. Dr. Falconer may be sure of a warm welcome any time he can find it convenient to favor us with another similar treat.

The newly elected directors have already outlined an interesting program for next season and hope to be able to secure a number of distinguished speakers not heretofore heard in Napanee.

Clarence M. Warner, Esq.,

President of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

Dear Mr. Warner:—

The members of the Historical Society of Lennox and Addington desire to give some expression to the very sincere feeling of regret with which we accept the resignation of your official relation to this Society.

As a citizen of this County your removal is felt to be a distinct loss in many ways but in no section of the community will your personality, and your work be more gratefully remembered and your absence be more sincerely deplored than among those whose interest you have enlisted in the work of this organization.

It seems hardly necessary in the presence of this representative audience to refer to the fact that everyone recognizes that it is owing to the work of this organization. It seems hardly necessary in the presence of this representative audience to refer to the fact that everyone recognizes that it is owing to your indefatigable labor that this society has attained the prominent position and the honorable prestige which it now holds among the Historical Societies of Canada.

To you is due all the credit of organizing and maturing a work which now holds a place second to none among the societies of a similar character in the Dominion. We are free to acknowledge that had it not been for your enthusiastic interest and painstaking research this county would never have become possessed of the collection of records and other mementos of the pioneer settlers of this county of which we are so justly proud and which will prove invaluable to future generations.

As citizens of Napanee we wish to give expressions also to our own particular tribute of gratitude for the splendid lecture courses which you have provided for us during the winter months of the past nine years. We assure you we can give no adequate expression to our appreciation of these sources of information and inspiration opened up to us through your generous and untiring efforts in direction. The recollection of these intellectual treats will be among the most cherished memories of future years.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Manual Training to be Taught

The Trustees at a recent meeting of their Board have approved of the erection of a Central Heating Plant. This, though somewhat costly to erect will greatly reduce the annual fuel bill and will at the same time ensure greater comfort to the patients.

Another advance step, is the erection of a Vocational Building, where patients, who are interested, may during their convalescence, acquire training in arts and crafts work, such as pottery manufacture, leather goods, brass and scroll work, also telegraphy and stenography.

Many new beds for patients will be provided—Cottages for married employees are to be erected, and other improvements are to be made, providing for the comfort and contentment of the inmates of this Hospital.

WHAT THE W.C.T.U. IS DOING FOR THE BOYS IN THE TRENCHES.

While the Red Cross and many other socialies are using every effort, to send comfort and cheer to the men in the trenches.

The W.C.T.U. of Ontario, have not been behind the others.

Almost as soon as the the armies of the Allies has entered the field of action, the Y.M.C.A. and other organizations were on hand to help. The W.C.T.U. heard the call and answered it by securing the right to finance, the entire work of the T.M.C. A. men.

The Y.M.C.A. were very glad to give this privilege to the W.C.T.U., who are now responsible for the many forms of service rendered by these two 'men Capt. Ed. Archibald and Capt. Harry Whiteman.

We at home hve not the least conception of the horrors of the life in the trenches. They live for a week in sight of death in its most repulsive form, any minute one of the many shells constantly dropping, may have left of them only a few sures of flesh and cloth, for every day, even when there is no battle on, there are hundreds of casualties. Well, we cannot be there to comfort and hearten these men, but we have made sure someone will. Thousands of "cups that cheer, but do not inebriate" are paid for by the W.C.T.U.

Perhaps the most trying of all the forms of duty is that assigned the night guards, on them rest the safety of hundreds of men. They must watch with unwearied vigilance, lest an enemy patrol should creep in on them, to cut their wire entanglements. They must listen with strained intensity, lest there should come a night attack, one careless sound might seal their doom, one unguarded move might reveal them to the enemy.

Do you wonder these men frequently collapse. To strengthen them against this, and to raise barrier between them and the lure of the alcohol. We are providing pots of hot soup containing 440 pints. These are brought right into the trenches so that the night watch may help themselves as they have need.

Of course, the men buy the food and boiled articles sold in the Y.M.C.A. Canteens, but all the supplies required for their entertainment, and their religious instruction, together with the tea, coffee and soup, the W.C.T.U. are paying for.

It may well comfort us that we have this privilege.

NEW COMFORTS FOR TORONTO- OTTAWA TRAVELLERS.

In conference with their customary progressive policy, the Canadian Northern Railway has now added Library-Observation Compartment cars to the superior standard sleeping car equipment already operated on their night trains between Toronto and Ottawa. These new cars are of the very latest, wide vestibule type, containing one drawing room and four compartments; each electrically lighted and cooled. Heating arrangements permit the regulation of the heat in the individual compartment independently of the body of the car. Other commendable features are the umbrella stand, lady's curling irons, toilet service and specially arranged lights. In the library observation section there is a writing desk with dainty stationery, comfortable lounging chairs invite repose, and the specially adjustable lights over each shoulder of the chairs prove to be an acceptable innovation to the passenger desiring to read the daily newspapers, periodicals etc., which are at his disposal. The buffet facilities embodied in these cars completes a service which will soon earn for them the reputation they deserve as "The Aristocrats of Canada Sleeping Cars. Each compartment contains two berths; drawing room has three. Tickets and reservation may be obtained from E. McLAUGHLIN, town agent, or R. E. McLEAN, Station Agent. 23-b.

TWO ENEMY SUBS IN MID-ATLANTIC

New York, May 7.—Two German submarines of the latest type, conveyed by two armed auxiliary cruisers, are within striking distance of the American coast.

On April 29 this fleet attacked the French liner Venezia when off the Azores, approximately 1,900 miles from New York in a direct line.

The German fleet at that time was headed due west.

CAPTAIN KEEPS SILENT.

The Venezia, which escaped by skillful manoeuvring, arrived here to-day. Captain Boniface declined absolutely to discuss the affair. From various members of the crew, however, the story was gradually obtained.

Only one unit of the German fleet attacked the Venezia. The other armed cruiser and submarines continued on their westerly course. They probably are by this time within a day's run of the American coast.

SIGHTED 1,200 MILES FROM PORT.

The Venezia left Havre on April 24. At noon April 29, when about 1,200 miles from the latter port, a steamer was sighted on the port bow about four miles distant.

The day was calm and the strange craft carried no neutral or other markings. She apparently had no wireless.

While Captain Boniface was watching her from the bridge a puff of smoke issued from the stranger and a signal ordering him to stop was run up at the halyards.

At the same instant another vessel was observed close to the horizon on the starboard. By the aid of powerful marine glasses the officers on the bridge were able to discern the bluish smoke from the gasoline engines of two submarines close to the ship on the starboard side. This convoy was headed west.

BIG CONVERTED LINER.

The vessel which fired the shot was apparently a cargo boat of about 3,000 tons. The ship with the submarines on the starboard was evidently a converted liner of about 7,000 tons. The cargo boat had one smoke stack and two masts. The rig of the other could not be made out owing to the cloud of smoke which hung over her.

Immediately after the warning shot was fired Captain Boniface ordered the Quartermaster to throw the helm bard to starboard. This swung his ship to port and allowed him to get a lead on the attacking ship.

VENEZIA DOES 14 KNOTS.

The latter instead of quickly taking up the pursuit signalled to the other German vessel and then bore down to meet the convoy. Some quick signalling passed between the two German commanders, the larger vessel continuing on her westerly course all the time.

While this was going on Captain Boniface ordered all hands on duty and sent as many men into the engine room as could work there. The men worked in the stokehold with feverish energy until the Venezia, which normally only makes about 12½ knots, began to make a little over 14 knots.

After the signalling by the two Germans had ended the smaller of the two took up the chase of the Venezia. This chase lasted until sundown, during which time more than a dozen shells were fired at the French liner. All the shells struck the sea at distances varying from 1,000 and 800

GERMANY'S ONE

The German emperor has deft turn to the submarine between Washington and Berlin twist that not only has pattering to the United States, lessening considerably the tension between the two countries, but has opened—very slightly—the door which will lead Europe.

The kaiser, in brief, has c President Wilson—unofficial course—his plea against a diplomatic relations between countries because in the negotiations, which many believe, Germany looks to States to be the mediator, that will bring about and the negotiations which will bloodiest war the world known.

LOOKS TO UNITED STATES AID.

Emperor William has hint that Germany is seeking peace, but in his talk bassador Gerard on the question, the kaiser let it be known that German to go to almost any length with national honor to good will of the American. Germany not only the United States as by far the most of the neutral powers, has no desire to force into of its enemies, but intimate country is the one nation portance to which German for mediation when peace and to which it can turn care for the interests of land in such negotiations.

Ambassador Gerard has reported to President Wilson of his recent conference the German emperor on the battle front. But the official Washington, gratified at the kaiser's ex good will toward the United States are still asking what Germany tends to do ultimately in the submarine controversy country.

BERLIN WISHES TO NI

Berlin will not grant, at away, the demands of States regarding the prohibition of submarine warfare. German officials have them, which is the first Berlin has suggested a dip response regarding the issue, and has unofficially the second sign of promise German U-boats will operate in their blockade of Europe the dispute is being settled diplomatic channels.

This, it is believed, President is willing to accept, dispose of in a direct manner things on which the United States demanded a direct answer, but may wait indefinitely in the meantime, conduct marine warfare along the coast proper by the Washington, such as the opera U-boats as cruisers would.

THE ONE GRAVE D.

The only difficulty in this procedure is that some German commander may over bounds and perpetrate another disaster. In this case the United States would follow. Count von would be handed his pass immediately, and Ambassador

ANCIENT ANESTHETICS.

Nepenthe and Other Agents Were Used by Old Time Surgeons.

Those who imagine that surgical knowledge began with later generations and that the discovery of chloroform revolutionized the science should read an article published by Dr. J. de Fenton in the South African Journal of Science.

Various anesthetizing media and methods were well known both in antiquity and during the middle ages. Homer mentions the anesthetic effects of nepenthe; Herodotus states that the Scythians obtained similar effects from the vapors of hemp, produced by throwing hemp seed on hot stones. A Chinese physician of the third century, B. C., gave his patients a preparation of hemp to make them insensible during surgical operations.

The most important anesthetic of ancient and medieval times was, however, wine of mandragora, the use of which is mentioned by a great number of early writers and is referred to by Shakespeare. More recently, in the year 1700, the German surgeon, Weiss, better known as Albinus, amputated the foot of Augustus III., king of Poland, while under the influence of mandragora.

Two other anesthetizing agencies were employed in very early times, arterial compression and hypnotism.

All the shells struck the sea at distances varying from 1,000 and 800 yards of the Venezia.

The converted cargo boat was said to have a little more speed than the Venezia but the early lead obtained by the manoeuvre of Captain Boniface was too much to overcome before nightfall.

SUB STORY DENIED BY FRENCH CAPTAIN

New York, May 8.—The report that the Fabre Line steamship Venezia was attacked and chased by two German commerce raiders and submarines in mid-sea on May 1 was denied to-day by Captain Bonifacio, the ship master, in making his report to the Fabre Line office and to Captain Gaunt, British Naval Attache.

Captain Bonifacio's statement to the steamship officials was as follows: "On May 1, at noon, 42.51 north latitude, 39.53 west longitude, I saw a vessel of about 3,000 tons painted black with one smokestack about five miles away, and on the horizon a cloud of smoke, indicating a steamer at a distance of about 12 miles away."

"The first steamer crossed the bow of the Venezia about four miles away, and made no attempt to intercept my steamer or give any signals."

"About forty-five minutes later I sighted another steamer about 5 miles away and could see two small boats close by, which were probably tenders."

"Neither of the steamers attempted to chase me, although I altered my course, as I was suspicious of the vessels and several flashes of gunfire, which, however, was at targets not visible to me or my officers."

"I saw no submarines, and not being pursued believe it was only vessels at target practice."

Working Out a Garden's Salvation.

Looking backward, I note the transition from reading books about gardens to doing work in one of them and how it gradually came to pass that I read less and only of standard substantialities that might be termed principles, because I found that I must work out my own garden salvation and work it out, if not with fear and trembling, certainly with a humble mind and a humble disposition.—From "My Growing Garden," by J. Horace McFarland.

BIG LINER CYMRIC TORPEDOED

QUEENSTOWN, via London, May 9.—Bulletin.—The Cymric was torpedoed at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. It is reported that she is still afloat and is proceeding to an Irish port.

The above despatch filed by the Associated Press correspondent at Queenstown, is the first direct announcement of the torpedoing of the White Star Line steamer. It would seem to indicate that the Cymric had been attacked off the southwest or south coast of Ireland, possibly not far from where the Lusitania went down.

London, May 8.—The 13,000-ton White Star liner Cymric, which for some time has been engaged in freight service, has been torpedoed by a German submarine according to advices received here. One report says that the Cymric was attacked in the atlantic, while the information of the White Star Co. at Liverpool is to the effect that the steamer was torpedoed about noon to-day.

The Cymric left New York April 29 with an enormous cargo of munitions. As she usually makes a voyabout noon to-day. The Cymric left New York April 29 with an enormous cargo of munitions. As she usually makes a voy- age from New York to Liverpool in ten days, she was therefore within a day or two of her destination. It is considered probable, in the absence of definite details, that the disaster to the Cymric occurred off the west coast of Ireland, but whether on the northerly or southerly route cannot be stated.

The fate of the steamship is not yet known, altho an early message received in London reported that the Cymric was sinking. The crew aboard numbered about 100 men, but the steamer carried no passengers.

The Exchange Telegraph Co. understands that the Cymric was torpedoed by a German submarine in the Atlantic.

The liner is stated to have been unarmed. Reports that she had been taken over by the British Government are given denial. The practice of carrying passengers was discontinued some time ago.

The "Cymric", a sister ship of the "Arabie", is a twin screw vessel, length over all, 616 feet; breadth of beam, 65 feet; gross tonnage 15,801; horse power, 10,000; and capable of speed of over 15 knots. She was built by Harland and Wolff, Limited, Belfast, Ireland.

MANY CARTRIDGES ABOARD.

No word has been received at the offices of the White Star Line here, it was said, concerning the steamer Cymric, reported sinking in cable despatches from London, when the office closed for the night at 6.30 o'clock.

The Cymric left New York April 20 with a cargo of munitions and war supplies, including 8900 cases of cartridges. She was commanded by Capt. F. F. Beadnell and had a crew of over 100 men. The Cymric carried no passengers.

J. J. Macpherson, British Vice-Consul here in charge of shipping, said that as far as he knew there were no Americans among the crew. The Cymric, he said, arrived here with a crew of 110 men. Twelve deserted and eight were taken on. None of those taken on were American citizens, Mr. Macpherson added. In addition to the crew, five distressed British seamen, who had been ill here, were on the steamer.

NO CANADIANS ABOARD.

Ottawa, May 8.—It is officially stated there are no Canadians aboard the Cymric.

ATTACK WITHOUT WARNING.

BANTRY, May 9, via London.—One hundred and seven members of the crew of the Cymric arrived at Bantry this evening. Several suffering from broken limbs, were sent the hospital.

The officers of the Cymric declare that the vessel was torpedoed without warning. A submarine was seen, but it disappeared immediately after firing the torpedo.

The Cymric, altho badly damaged, made her way for some hours, but finally sank.

Many of the crew, on their arrival here, were barefooted and only partially clothed. They were provided with clothing and given all the care possible.

BATTLE OF HILL 304 COST FOE 10,000 MEN

PARIS, May 8.—The fourth great offensive by the Germans is in progress at Verdun, and on a scale comparable with those preceding. An officer attached to one of the subordinate staffs there, who has arrived here, says:—"Yesterday's battle involved most of the German troops. The preliminary bombardment was the most furious of any single day since the beginning of the Verdun attack. On the western bank the Germans followed their usual plan of attacking at a point chosen was along the road from configuration of the ground. The point chosen was along the road from Lethincourt to Esnes, which runs southward in a wooded ravine between Hill 304 and the twin crests of Dead Man's Hill. If they could pierce the French front there they would simultaneously turn Hill 304 and Dead Man's Hill. In my opinion the narrowness of the front spoiled the attack, for it enabled the French artillery to do execution on almost the same scale as mitrailleuses. This compensated for the latter being put out of action by the bombardment or the withdrawal of French troops. Eye-witnesses told me that they had not seen such slaughter since the February assault on Pepper Hill, when the hillside torrents ran blood red into the Meuse.

"When the wind blew aside the smoke that generally hides the advancing lines one saw earth, trees and bodies thrown up in fragments, amid fountains of flame. Only at the southern point of the ravine did the Germans enter our trenches, and that gain must have cost 10,000 casualties. The attack here began at dawn and lasted until early evening, but on the east of the Meuse fighting did not begin until afternoon, where four Prussian regiments were used up on this front to obtain an equally trifling advantage along the road from Douaumont to Fleury, southeast of the fort. Altogether it was one more costly failure."

A training college for teachers of separate schools in Ontario was opened at Oak Ridge, in York county.

VIII.—THE CENTER OF POPULATION

[Copyright, The Frank A. Munsey Co.]

THREE generations are commonly said to complete the cycle from shirtsleeves to shirt-sleeves. Even though it is not encompassed in six or seven, collateral branches of the same family, at all times during the transition, may disclose not only shirtsleeves, but patched overalls and Horace Greeley whiskers to boot. Thus, while Frederic Goodel pursued the lucrative occupation of a dealer in "investment securities," his cousin, Lafayette Goodel, tilled the ancestral farm in Sullivan county and each year came within perhaps a hundred dollars of clearing expenses.

The deficit was supplied by Frederic, who took in exchange an occasional basket of small sour peaches. Once he had paid his cousin a visit projected to last for ten days. He rowed on the lake, climbed the mountain, grew bilious from drinking too much milk and at the end of the third afternoon waved an adieu from the rear platform of the observation car, into which he immediately disappeared, not to emerge again until the porter's whiskbroom heralded his imminent arrival in town.

"What a place!" he ejaculated to his brother-in-law, Rushmore Luddington. "Hard beds, soft water, unripe fruit and everything fried to a crisp!"

"That's the way our ancestors were raised, though," Luddington replied, "and what a sturdy lot of fellows they were!"

"Of course they were. They simply had to be if they survived at all."

"But then, you know, there's the lake and the mountain, the whole," Luddington concluded, "providing an ideal place for a boy's holiday."

Goodel struck the desk.

"By Jove, an admirable suggestion!" he exclaimed. "Jimmie shall go there next week. Sour peaches at a hundred dollars a basket are too expensive for me. I once had Jimmie out to lunch, and if he doesn't eat Cousin Lefe out of house and home I'm no judge of a good appetite!"

At this juncture Mr. Goodel's only clerical assistant, the sixteen-year-old Jimmie Brennan, entered and deposited a bundle of canceled vouchers on his employer's desk.

"Now, Mr. Goodel," he said, "dat guy at de bank wanted me to sign a receipt for dem cut checks."

"And did you?" Mr. Goodel asked.

"I did not," Jimmie replied, and produced the unsigned receipt from his breast pocket.

"Quite right," Mr. Goodel commented as he adjusted a pair of gold glasses on his shapely nose. "Never sign anything for me unless I tell you to do so, and never sign anything for yourself unless you read it over first."

"That's right," Lefe said. "Jes' make yerself ter hum. I'd let yer drive, but I dassen't trust her to yer."

After a sharp "Gidap!" from Lefe, the old mare moved slowly away from the tracks. Jimmie and his host maintained an embarrassed silence. The boy furtively glanced at his employer's cousin and made mental note of the ragged fringe of whiskers that adorned the farmer's neck. As Lefe shifted a huge mouthful of tobacco from cheek to cheek his Adam's apple jerked convulsively. Apparently, it roamed about at will, and disappeared beneath his shirt collar only to bob up among the thicket of whiskers with an agility that completely fascinated Jimmie.

"Say," he said at length and by way of conversation, "was you ever to Pastor's?"

Lefe bestowed the cud in one corner of his mouth, voided a pint or so of the attendant moisture and wiped his lips on the back of his hand.

"Which wan?" he asked.

"On Fourteenth street."

his transformation into as rustic a youth as never saw Fulton market or the Brooklyn bridge.

It was, therefore, not at all surprising that he should be hailed as "bud" by the thickest gentleman with the jet black mustache who drove a smart looking horse and buggy up the farm lane.

"Who lives here, bud?" he asked out of one corner of his mouth.

Jimmie took in at one comprehensive glance the panama hat, the diamond breastpin and the general air of Tenderloin insouciance that pervaded the stranger's personality.

"Come again," Jimmie said.

"Where's yer pap?"

"Pap?" Jimmie repeated.

"Oh, rats!" the stranger broke in impatiently and drove rapidly up the lane. Jimmie gazed after him in unaffected surprise. That essentially urban presence in its strange setting of pasture and meadow affected the boy like a whiff of East river breeze, and he turned to his task of mowing the border of the lane, almost glad that his vacation approached its close.

A moment later the buggy drew up near the barn, where Lefe was busily engaged currying Olympia's rough coat with a handful of straw.

"Mr. Lafayette Goodel?" the stranger asked.

Lefe nodded, and his visitor's beady eyes rested on Olympia.

"That's a nice looking mare you've got there, friend."

"I lay great store by her," Lefe replied dryly.

"About how much do you ask for her?"

Lefe surveyed the stranger's three-year-old trotter for one admiring second.

"I'll make an even swap," he answered, "and give yer $100 to boot."

The stranger laughed, "as if he were being paid for it," Lefe said afterward.

"She ain't mine," he volunteered. "She belongs to the United States government."

"Sho!" said Lefe, resuming the chewing of a straw.

"And so do I," the stranger continued, flashing a gilt badge.

"Do tell!" was Lefe's comment.

"Topographical department."

"Ain't nothin' ter do with sellin' trees?" Lefe suggested.

"Nope."

"Nor books?"

"Nope."

"Nor lightnin' rods?"

Then it was that Jimi ped his scythe and seized the animal by the bridle just as rived on the scene, flourishing in his right hand.

Then, adding example to percept, Mr. Goodel carefully perused the printed slip. He crossed out one or two words and appended his signature with characteristic neatness.

"My boy, beware of printed forms," he continued to Jimmie, who received the admonition with a scared gravity. "Everybody signs them and nobody reads them. Hence the supposed order for the encyclopedia, with an appendix, proves to be a promissory note for $500." He emphasized the remark with a vigorous wink to Luddington.

"Beware of printed forms," he continued to Jimmie.

"And now, Jimmie," he went on, "how would you like to have a vacation?"

"A vacation?" Jimmie cried. "Why, I ain't sick, Mr. Goodel."

Goodel gazed critically at Jimmie's shining red cheeks and neatly combed hair.

"I admit," he said, appealing to Luddington, "that he doesn't look it."

Jimmie's face expanded into a broad grin, and Luddington nodded slowly.

"True," he agreed in solemn accents; "but there may be some internal disorder, and therefore—"

"And therefore," Goodel interrupted, "Jimmie leaves for Cousin Lafa's next week."

Many years of plowing had reduced the action of Lafa Goodel's mare to a deliberate amble, which as much resembled the gait of a normal horse as the progress of a baby's bassinet compares to the onrushing touring car. She had been dubbed Olympia by Lafa's sister, who deemed the name not only euphonious, but an apt allusion to a slight lameness with which the mare was afflicted. For the rest Olympia was blind of one eye and very timid about automobiles, at which she invariably shied. This was evidenced by a certain switching of her attenuated tail, and at periods of great emotion, such as a locomotive might engender, she wagged her right ear.

When Jimmie Brennan stepped from the New York express to the platform or the little flag station at Goodel's Corners, Olympia's ear and tail twitched a frenzied equivalent to the running away of the normal horse, and Lafa was alarmed in proportion.

"Whoa, dern yer!" he bellowed. "What ails yer?" He seized the lines with a tense grip and sat bolt upright, prepared for any emergency, as Jimmie approached. "I never see nothin' like it!" he declared. "This blame hoss can't never git used to no engynes. I bet I druv her down here four times, countin' this year an' last, an' she always kicks up the same folderol!"

Jimmie flung his valise on the back lips on the back of his hand.

"Which wan?" he asked.

"On Fourteent' street."

"No," he answered. "I never was to the city. Gidap!" He fell again to the rumination of his fine cut. "Why d'ye ask?"

"I t'ought I seen yer dere wanst," Jimmie replied, "wid a lady wot play-ed on de trambone. You wuz tellin' her about de circus comin' ter town, an' den yer did a sand dance toged-der."

Lafa gasped in astonishment and almost swallowed his tobacco.

"Look a-here, young feller," he said. "I dunno what kind o' dominies you've got to New York, but up here ministers of the gospel don't allow no such carryin's on in their houses. Gidap!"

Jimmie felt vaguely that he had offended and offered prompt reparation.

"Excuse me," he said humbly. "I didn't mean to make no break."

"Freely granted!" cried Lafa. "City ways ain't country ways, I guess, but you seem a right nice young feller. Gidap!"

Jimmie blushed, and for the rest of the ride neither ventured on any further conversation. Lafa's sister met them at the head of the farm lane and greeted Jimmie with a motherly smile.

"Well, Lafa," she cried, "Lympia ain't so spry as some. You'd better come right in an' set down. Biscuits is burnin' this half hour past."

For almost an hour Jimmie tucked in honey and hot biscuit, with steaming coffee and ham, until his ruddy cheeks glistened and the waistband of his trousers grew taut. By this time the conversation assumed a more intimate tone, and even Lafa thawed out.

"Well, sister," he said, "y'orter seen 'Lympia when the train came in. I swan she was scairt out of her wits!"

"She'll get over it fast enough," Miss Goodel commented, "when they cut the railroad through the pasture lot."

Lafa slapped his knee.

"By Gregory," he cried; "she'll never get over it, if that's what she's waitin' for! That derned railroad company won't own my pasture lot for less than $500 an acre unless they steal it from me."

"Mebbe they will," said Miss Goodel, "if you stay up till all hours of the night. You need to have a clear brain if you want to get ahead of the railroad company."

Lafa rose and stretched lazily.

"All right, sister," he grunted, and, taking the lamp from the table, he piloted Jimmie to the spare room on the second floor.

Under Lafa's tutelage Jimmie rapidly acquired all the accomplishments of a hired man, and when his vacation drew toward its close it had proved to be as profitable for Lafa as it had been enjoyable for Jimmie. A profusion of freckles obscured the healthy glow in the boy's cheeks, and a cast-off suit of Lafa's overalls completed

Lafa was not impressed.

"Well, I s'pose canvassers must have names, same as other people," he said. Mr. Fanning grew slightly purple.

"I ain't a canvasser, and I don't want to sell you anything. You understand? I'm here to talk business." He hurried along before Lafa could get in a word. "The United States topographical department is making a map of this country, and you may or may not know it, but right on the creek that runs through your pasture lot, next to the white oak tree,—here Mr. Fanning consulted a paper—"and thence twenty-four degrees forty minutes east ten chains and thirteen links"—

"Excuse me, Mr. Fanning," Lafa interrupted. "I ain't no land surveyor!"

Mr. Fanning waved an airy gesture with his large white hand.

"That's all right," he went on; "there ain't no necessity for me to continue. The point is this—right next to that white oak tree is the center of population of New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania and Connecticut."

"Pretty lonesome there in winter, all the same," Lafa suggested. He shuffled his feet uneasily. "I'd be glad to visit with you some more, but I got a heap o' chores an' no help to speak of."

"That's all right," Mr. Fanning assured him again; "my time's worth money and so is yours. I won't mince words about it, but the United States government has decided to put up a monument in your pasture lot similar to the one I show you here."

Mr. Fanning produced some photographs of small cairns, or monuments, erected by the United States geodetic survey in the course of its work and made a running comment on each picture.

"Now, here's one of the monuments built on Mount Pisgah, the highest point in the northern tier counties," he said. "Handsome piece of work, don't you think?"

"Some might say so," Lafa replied, "but I don't know as I want any such contraption in my pasture lot."

Immediately Mr. Fanning dug down into his trousers pocket and produced a roll of bills, from which he peeled ten crisp five dollar notes.

"Uncle Sam ain't no niggard when it comes to paying for what he wants," he declared, "and here's $50 for the privilege of building a small stone monument in your pasture lot. Take 'em!" He thrust the bills into Lafa's hand and seized his hat. "Now, that's settled," he said and strode out of the house.

"See here," Lafa commenced, "I don't know as I ought to"—

"You mean," Mr. Fanning broke in without pausing in his progress toward the barn, "you don't feel like taking the money without giving a receipt. Well, that's all right; your word's good enough for me."

"Tain't that," Lafa corrected, "but"—

"Well, all right, if you insist," said Mr. Fanning, pausing. "Have it your own way."

He searched in his breast pocket and pulled out a sheet of paper. Then he handed a fountain pen to Lafa.

"Sign here," he said.

Folding the paper so that only the spot he indicated was visible, he held it against his horse's flank while Lafa signed. "There, that's all right," he said, among the scattered paper document bearing Lafa's sprawling signature. Lafa it with an exclamation.

"Leggo the mare, Jimmie! We're all through!"

Jimmie released the bride sooner had he sprung to one horse and buggy disappeared farm lane in a cloud of dust. Lafa rose to his feet, gathering up his belonging his heels after the trotter curses as he went.

ONCE A SOVEREIGN STATE.

Now Noli Is Simply a Fishing Village With a Past.

One of the oddest and quaintest little independent states that ever existed in Europe—the tiny republic of Noli, founded before Rome and maintaining its liberty for many centuries until Napoleon swept away its privileges—is today merely a fishing village near Genoa, but it is full of reminders of its former greatness and affords a wonderful glimpse of mediaeval times. Destroyed by the Carthaginians in 217 B. C., and who knows how often by subsequent marauders, there seemed no limit to her powers of recovery.

This quaint little fishing village maintained itself as a sovereign state for centuries, took a prominent part in the quarrels of Guelphs and Ghibellines, sent doughty warriors to the Crusades, commanded the interest of emperors and popes and only succumbed at last to the armies of Napoleon. Dante clambered hither over terrible hills on hands and knees and revenged himself by consigning Noli to his "Purgatory."

Everybody is rich in this poor man's paradise, says the Wide World Magazine. During the anchovy months it is not rare for the 120 boats to earn $4,000 in a night, or $75,000 in a season. Through fish alone a man earns far more than a clerk, besides which he has no "appearances" to keep up. Under these happy conditions he soon acquires land and houses, which afford a steady revenue while he sleeps or fishes. The earth here has only to be scratched in order to bring forth wealth, so rich is the soil and so abundant the water.

First Iron Skates.

Skating does not appear always to have been as common an accomplishment as it is nowadays. Iron skates seem to have been introduced by the Dutch, but the art itself was known in London at an early period. The monk, Fitzstephen, who was secretary to Archbishop Becket, describes the bone skates used by Londoners in the twelfth century. But Pepys, writing in 1662, has a reference. "Over the parke," he says, "where I first in my life, it being a great frost, did see people sliding with their skatees, which is a very pretty art." From which it is reasonable to infer that skating was not as general then as later or Mr. Pepys would not have missed it.

BURMA'S COLOSSAL BUDDHA.

This Statue Is Said to Be the Largest In the World.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This colossal was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay.

While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took but an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Gautama.

One Way Out.

Despite his illiteracy Mose Belt has gathered quite a competency from his whitewashing and kalsomining trade.

Recently during the course of some business with a notary the latter produced a document, saying:

"Sign your name here, Mose."
"Look heah," said Mose, with offended dignity, "I doesn't sign mah name, suh. I's a business man, suh, an' has no time for dem trifling details. I always dictates mah name, suh."

Equality.

"No such thing as stuckupishness about her," says the loyal servitor, defending his mistress against the criticisms of the acquaintance who is inveighing against class discrimination and the attitude of the wealthy toward the working element.

"Well, but don't she order you around?"

"Sure she does! She bawls me out just the same as what she does her husband. She don't make no difference between me an' him even."

a very pretty one. From which it is reasonable to infer that skating was not as general then as later or Mr. Pepys would not have missed it.

Awkward.

A visitor to a hospital for soldiers was surprised to hear one of the patients being addressed by the nurses by his Christian name, it being custom- ary to address patients by their sur- names only. Upon inquiry as to why this distinction was accorded to the particular soldier referred to the reply received was:

"Well, we can't very well call him by his surname."

"But why not?" queried the some- what astonished visitor.

"You see," was the overwhelming answer, "his surname is Love, and it's rather awkward."—London Tit-Bits.

Why Mosquitoes Like Blood.

The fact that mosquitoes so continu- ally harass rich blooded creatures is due to the fact that they cannot lay eggs without the albuminous food which is thus obtained. In tropical countries the greatest enemy of the malaria bearing mosquito is a species of bat which is protected from the in- sect's bite by its strangely shaped hairs.

The bat is very swift of flight, and the mosquitoes, especially those which have already made a supper of blood, are their ideal food.

Coffin Pasties.

Mince pies now are generally round, but there was a time when they were of a long, coffin shape and were, in fact, often referred to as "coffin pasties." But this somewhat greswome name and shape do not appear to have detracted from their popularity. Scogin, for instance, in the edition of his "Jests" published in 1626, is re- ported to have said on his deathbed, "Masters, I tell you all that stand about mee, if I might live to eate a Christ- masse pye I care not if I dye by and by after; for Christmasse pyes be good meat."—London Chronicle.

Couldn't Get at Him.

Grubbs—Young Blower tells me that at the trial of the last case in which he participated he moved the jurors to tears. Stubbs—Yes, so one of the jur- ors told me. He said that they were hemmed in by a high railing and two bailiffs were constantly on guard. The tears were tears of rage.—

Old Fashioned.

"Daughter, you should not be seen constantly with a young man unless you are engaged to him or expect to become engaged."

"How old fashioned you are, ma! That's my dancing partner."

Luxuries Cause Cold Feet.

Tight, narrow shoes, high heels, tight waists and the habit of candy eating cause in many women benumbed, ten- der and icy feet and age them early.— Health Culture.

had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly pre- served figure of Gautama.

In actual length the statue is 180 feet and fifty feet high at the shoul- der. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been re- moved and painted over, the box at the head and the finger nails gilded and the headdress decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference what- ever being made to it in Burmese leg- ends or traditions.—Wide World Mag- azine.

Suits to a T.

The clause "It suits to a T," mean- ing it fits exactly, is as old as the fa- miliar instrument, the T square or T rule so called from its resemblance to the letter T, used by mechanics and draftsmen for making angles true and for obtaining perpendiculars. The ex- pression was in common use in the time of Dr. Johnson, who is quoted by Boswell as saying of Warburton, "You see they have fitted him to a T."

Condescension.

"Isn't the style of music you have been playing rather lacking in classic quality?"

"Oh, yes," replied the highly accom- plished girl. "But one must show some consideration for the tastes of one's parents."

Dad's Portion.

"I notice an eastern paper runs an attractive mothers' department headed 'Frocks and Frills.'"

"Some of these papers," growled the old man, "ought to run a fathers' de- partment headed 'Shocks and Bills.'"

Where Her Thoughts Were.

Daughter—To tell the truth, pa. I didn't think much of the close of the sermon. Father—Thought more of the clothes of the congregation, eh?

Labor now to live so that at the hour of death thou mayest rather rejoice than fear. A Kempis.

Lines.

Railroads, poems, plays, drawings, thoughtful brows, pains of hands and geometry are made up of lines.

Lines sometimes have a president and a board of directors, and presi- dents and boards of directors usually have lines. The care of lines produces lines of care.

Fishes and sentimental young ladies are frequently caught with lines.

Poets formerly were much given to imitating certain lines to young ladies, but the modern lady who desires cer- tain lines usually goes to a modiste.

A man who gets a line on other peo- ple is either a prodigate son, a detec- tive or a tattoo artist.

Ruddy Mars.

There seems to have been no reason other than its suggestive color for the selection of the planet Mars as the ce- lestial symbol of the war god. Yet it was universally so regarded in ancient times.

If we could tell why Mars is red we might hit upon the whole secret of that strange planet. Its color is probably due to some peculiar quality of its soil. It may be principally composed of ma- terial resembling our red sandstone, or it may be stained red by an abundance of iron in its rocks.

Pleasing Superiority.

"Why are there so many old jokes on the stage?"

"Oh, they go good. That is due to the feeling of superiority produced by the fact that you know the answer, while the actor gink who is being told the joke apparently does not."

Strategy.

Hub—I told Bohrsun that we might drop in on them tonight. Wife—Oh, fudge! You know I don't want to visit those people, and I can't see why you do. Hub—I don't. I told him that, so that we can stay at home tonight with- out fear of having them drop in on us.

SPRAYING TREES.

The Treatment Should Be Given Three Times for Good Fruit.

It may be presumed that owners of city lot fruit trees will use a commercial prepared spray mixture. The home boiling of lime-sulphur would be work that would prove disagreeable, not only to the operator, but to the neighbors also, while Bordeaux mixture, though it can be prepared without nuisance to the neighborhood, can be replaced by prepared concentrates that require less handling and are quite satisfactory, where only a small quantity of spray is needed.

Concentrated lime-sulphur diluted to the right strength for the different

To find the amount of water that should be added in the case of the first spraying, which should take place before the buds burst divide the figures on the right hand side of the decimal point of the number that appears at the surface of the liquid, by 30, thus, if figure on hydrometer is 1,300, work as follows: 1,300 divided by 30 equals 10, i.e., the number of gallons of water to one of the concentrate should be nine.

For the second spraying, just before the blossoms open, the spray must not be nearly so strong as for the first, so the number to be used for dividing the decimal is nine in this case, and with the same hydrometer reading as instanced for the first spraying would work out as follows: 1,300 divided by nine equals 33 1-3, or the amount of water to be added is 32 1-3 gallons.

 SPRAY OLD TREES.

On many a dairy farm may be found an orchard of fifty or more apple trees. They are usually neglected, and some have passed out of usefulness. Others are vigorous still and would with proper care give good returns. Here is where careful spraying will show its best profit. These orchards were originally good ones—planted in the best soil with standard varieties. Nothing on the farm could give better returns on the investment than a thorough spraying of these old trees. Most of them will need some pruning, but the great need is spraying and it should be at

Don't

Drudg

Housework with its ceaseless drum duties often causes "go to seed." to become indifferent to both her appearance and what is going on around her. She fails to make agreeable, to keep her mind alert. The successful man in the business world knows the importance of keeping her keen and of doing her work in a way that it will come easily. The result is each day is met with less thought, the work is done mechanically, and the worker herself is more capable, better fitted to meet unexpected demands that may while come up.

"We are not all fitted for housework," we say apologetically. True, many of us are failures at it, but of course some truth in that. We are not all fitted for it, but every woman knows that she assumes the management of the home, and she alone, is responsible for the success or failure of that home.

We hear a lot about the laziness of housework, but if we only study up on it housework does not seem as distasteful as it is. A man seems to think it is. A lot of labor saving devices are so credible that women will in the old way of doing housework. A woman whose shoulders come bent from broom and bucket, a carpet sweeper will do the work better and easier and you will be thanked for your trouble. Coming to the broom, the old-fashioned moaning the fact that it is "never done." The old-fashioned and her coal stove have been sky high, but the deliciousness of these days in the kitchen have the old time cooking fire beaten a dozen different ways.

The woman who has been a household drudge has only herself to blame. No man likes to see his wife do the drudgery. Any woman who can make her housework easier for herself, better. Take, for instance, the old household articles put away in many papers. Caring for babies, the cleaning of the house, are handled in one may learn.

The banker, lawyer—in a professional and business world—up on his particular work, not women see the logic of their household needs the mother in her home, trusted with a greater work than most successful lawyer or

Don't go to seed. Fill your mind with happy thoughts. If you are a drudge. Even if silver shows in the gold or of your hair, do it up as possible. Go out and see the gay crowds occasionally, about yourself. The

of a small quantity of spray is needed.

Concentrated lime-sulphur diluted to the right strength for the different applications, plus arsenate of lead, when poison is needed, will be material sufficient for nearly all the spraying necessary for apples. When aphids are present, Black Leaf 40, kerosene emulsion or whale oil soap will have to be used.

At least three sprayings are recommended in the case of apples, and the same number will be found necessary for most other tree fruits, also for grapes, currants, gooseberries, raspberries, and blackberries.

For good results from the use of the concentrated commercial spray mixtures that are obtainable in liquid form it is necessary that the specific gravity be ascertained, so that the correct dilution may be made. The strength of these mixtures is, in some cases, guaranteed, but for perfect satisfaction one should provide himself with an hydrometer for finding the strength of the solution as compared with water. The hydrometer is marked with a graduated scale and is as easy to read as a thermometer, and all else that is necessary on the part of the person using it is a knowledge of the rule for determining the amount of water needed to bring spray to the proper strength. A spray calendar giving the desired strength for each spraying can be obtained from any of the agricultural experiment stations or can be found in the advertising matter that accompanies some of the commercial mixtures.

first spraying would work out as follows: 1,300 divided by nine equals 33 1-3, or the amount of water to be added is 32 1/2 gallons.

The above mentioned strengths are recommended for use on apple trees, for the control of scab, black spot, canker, and leaf spot. For codling moth, two to three pounds of arsenate of lead should be added to 40 gallons of the diluted for the second and third sprayings, the third spraying to take place just after the blossoms fall.

Certain scale insects are very resistant to treatment and, as a rule, sprays for the destruction of these latter must either be used very strong while plants are leafless and therefore not subject to harm, or the application may be more dilute; for this reason, one gallon of concentrated lime-sulphur to 7 1/2 of water is the strength advised for use when San Jose scale is present. This particular kind of scale is not found in many districts in Canada, but it has wrought so much damage in some of the best known fruit sections that the possibility of the presence of other kinds of scale is often overlooked.

Though lime-sulphur, either commercial or home-boiled, is the best all-round spray for the larger fruit trees. Bordeaux mixture can take its place, except in treatment for scale, and the fact that the latter is the ideal for use on grapes, small fruits and vegetables may make it the most satisfactory to the grower who wishes to get along with one kind only.

FERTILIZER FORMULAS.

Various Amounts Needed for Different Crops and Trees.

For cauliflower, celery, rhubarb, cabbage, and other garden crops, 300 pounds nitrate of soda, 300 pounds Peruvian guano, 800 pounds 16 per cent. acid phosphate. Mix thoroughly and apply 1,000 pounds to the acre.

For potatoes and other garden crops 200 pounds of nitrate of soda can be used in the above formula.

For fruit and shade trees, shrubs, vines, etc., 100 pounds nitrate of soda, 200 pounds Peruvian guano, 700 pounds 16 per cent. acid phosphate. Apply 500 pounds per acre.

For strawberries and small fruits, 300 pounds nitrate of soda, 100 pounds Peruvian guano, 900 pounds 16 per cent. acid phosphate. Apply 400 pounds per acre.

For clover, alfalfa, and legumes, 150 pounds nitrate of soda, 200 pounds Peruvian guano, 800 pounds 16 per cent. acid phosphate. Apply 400 to 600 pounds per acre.

Mix these materials thoroughly on a level floor, using a spade or shovel. Spread the materials out in layers and turn over several times with the shovel. If passed through an ash sieve of a quarter inch mesh all lumps will be pulverized and a thorough mixture secured.

These formulas are for the north. For the south slightly different formulas will be required.

The general method of using chemical fertilizers is to broadcast. This takes heavy applications, applying two-thirds broadcast and one-third in the row for cultivated crops. For wheat, oats, barley, etc. it should be drilled in at the time of seeding. Corn fertilizer when not broadcasted is best applied in a continued furrow from hill to hill along the row. For garden crops, including potatoes, the fertilizer is broadcast before planting and the balance worked in along the row. For beets the fertilizer should be drilled along the row when planting. Work the fertilizer in about the base of the plants of such small fruits as raspberries, blackberries, currants, gooseberries, etc.

In backward seasons an application of nitrate of soda alongside of the rows or hills of cultivated crops helps to overcome the handicap of abnormal weather and hastens maturity.

Off Guard.

"Your honor," declared the policeman, "I heard an awful yellin' back in the wagon yard, and when I got there this man was beating his wife. They had just drove in from Grant park."

Judge Broyles turned sharply on the prisoner, a tall, gaunt man, with clay colored complexion.

"Is this true? Were you beating your wife, sir?" the judge demanded.

"Yes, yer honor."

"How did you come to it?"

"I don't know, judge. For twenty years she allus wuz th' one what did th' beatin', but I jes' happened ter catch her when she wasn't feelin' right."—Case and Comment.

TIMELY FARM HINTS.

The old gardener says to look out for frost in spring or autumn, when the sunshine is very hot and the shade very cold and the shadows very deep. This indicates that the air is dry and radiation little checked.

Making a smudge in the garden at night when a frost is expected and spraying the plants thoroughly at the same time will help in preventing damage to plants by frost.

Beans, corn, cucumbers, eggplant, melons, okra, pepper, pumpkins, squash, sweet potatoes and tomato are the vegetables most likely to be damaged by slight frosts.

Ringed fruit trees is recommended by some agriculture and fruit publications. Unless the trees are to be ruined do not indulge in ringing.

It is surprising how much fruit can be had from a small strawberry patch properly cared for, and for flavor no store berries ever compare. Try planting strawberry beds of the best varieties.

Save the Barnyard Manure.

Barnyard manure restores worn soils to productiveness and lasting fertility better than any other fertilizer. It increases the supply of humus in the soil, improves the texture and increases the water absorbing and water holding qualities.

Ordinary barnyard manure properly cared for will average about ten pounds of potash, six pounds of acid phosphate, and one-half per cent. nitrogen to the ton.

The Grand Duchess of Luxemburg

Barely Twenty-one Years Old, the Youngest Ruler in Europe, Marie Adelaide Is Practically a Prisoner in

This pretty young girl, barely twenty-

dows upon a people starving, terrified and forced to live upon charity, she has striven bravely to assert her rights and those of her people in the face of the overwhelming power of the German empire, but the struggle is naturally a hopeless one.

To complete her misery great pressure has been brought to bear upon her to marry a German prince, but this she has refused to do, as she bitterly resents the German invasion of her country. For more than a year the kaiser's agents have worked hard to persuade the youngest ruler in Europe to become the bride of a German prince,
the object being to insure the future control of Luxemburg. So strong did this pressure become that the spirited young duchess revolted against it and,

model is so simple that any clever girl can make one for herself and any number for Easter brides.

Styles In Sleeves.

All the new tight bodices have long tight sleeves, but on the picture blouses
there are sleeves which recall the lego'-mutton outline and also sleeves finished off with voluminous frills of fine lace or embroidered tulle. For morning blouses the simple bishop sleeve holds its own bravely. For washing blouses this is the best of all sleeves.
It is as practical as it is becoming.

the cavity filled with sausage. Pare
the potatoes, brush them with butter

LADIES AS OSTLERS.

Gentlewomen Do All the Work at Three Horse Depots.

A notable example of the utilization of female labor in war-time is afforded by three large military horse depots at Reading.

There is not a single man on any of the staffs, the work of attending to the horses being done by gentlewomen. Some of them have been brought up in Australian and Canadian horse-ranches, but most of them are members of the South Berks and other hunts. The depots are convalescent homes for army horses.
They have been organized by Mr.
Cecil Aldin, the sporting artist and a joint master of the South Berks Hunt.

The fifty ladies working at the depots wear caps, short breeches, and gaiters. They meet the horses at the railway stations and do all that is necessary for their comfort, duly dispatching them from the railway stations when they are restored to health.—Tit-Bits.

A Post Office Romance.

A little known but perfectly true story came to light when the Paris
Post Office was overhauled for repairs, and a letter discovered between the box and the wall. Early in the century a pair of young lovers quarreled over some trifle, and the man, in a fit of temper, swore he would go abroad and never return unless the girl asked him to do so.
They parted in anger; but the woman, sure of his love, was confident that he would come back to her.

She never saw or heard of him again, but, faithful to his memory, never wedded another.

At the age of seventy, she received one day a letter, stained and shabby, with the address faint and discolored. The writing was familiar, despite the lapse of time, and she opened the envelope with trembling hands.

"Send me one word to say you forgive me. I cannot live without you."

That was all, except the date,— four days after the quarrel, fifty years before. The man, mistaking silence, had never returned.

Novelty Potatoes.

potatoes; put them into a saucepan

spoonfuls of butter, salt and pepper;

ure, object being to insure the future control of Luxemburg. So strong did this pressure become that the spirited young duchess revolted against it and, stamping her foot on the floor of her palace, exclaimed:

"I really must be left alone. If I cannot find peace in my own palace I shall soon be forced to seek it in a convent."

The grand duchess is the oldest of six sisters. Her family is a branch of the house of Orange, which rules in Holland. When Wilhelmina became queen of Holland she could not succeed to Luxemburg because of the Salic law. A cousin of Wilhelmina's became Grand Duke of Luxemburg. When he died in 1912, leaving only girl children, the Luxemburg parliament passed a new law making his daughters eligible to the throne.

Colors For Middle Age.

It is safe to say that few women of middle age can wear brown successfully. When the hair is turning white or gray it is particularly unbecoming, as the gray and brown do not harmonize in the least. Brown seems to bring out all the unbecoming yellow qualities in gray hair. Dark blue, on the other hand, lends it a bluish white tinge that is soft and particularly lovely. If your face is sallow never wear green. If, however, your hair is turning gray, but your skin is white and clear, with a soft pink flush in the cheeks, take to green kindly, as it will be most becoming. Lavender and purple are really beautiful on most middle aged women, while black and gray are equally successful. White, however, seldom looks well unless the skin is almost flawless.

Cream of Beet Soup.

Materials: One cupful of beets well cooked, one pint of mutton stock, two teaspoonfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of butter, one pint of milk, salt and pepper.

Utensils: Two saucepans, fine sieve, spoon and cup.

Directions: Cut the beets fine and simmer in the mutton stock fifteen minutes. Rub through sieve. Mix the butter and flour and add to the mutton stock and beet puree. Heat thoroughly, stirring constantly, and add to a pint of hot milk; season with salt and pepper.

New China Book Ends.

Book ends are always interesting, and unusual ones are sought after as gifts for all occasions. There is a new set in china which is particularly pretty. The design shows one book lying flat, its covers of dark gray, with yellow-edged leaves, and another book, standing upright on the lower book, is partly open. The ends are quite heavy enough for all purposes, and the coloring of the china is particularly attractive.

Freshen Baby's Coach.

Quite often the upholstery of a baby carriage becomes faded, worn or soiled, but a new cover can be made easily. Cut a paper pattern the size and shape of back and sides of the carriage, and make a cover to fit out of white pique or a natural colored linen. Bind with a wash braid and make button-holes along the edge. On the upholstery of the carriage sew pearl buttons and button the cover on.

"The Cobbler."

A game that is very enjoyable is called "the cobbler."

The cobbler sits in the middle on a stool or hassock, and the others join hands and dance around him. "Now, then, customers," says the cobbler, "let me try on your shoes," and at the same time, but without leaving his seat, makes a dash for some one's feet. The aim of the others is to avoid being caught. Whoever is caught becomes cobbler.

Beheadings.

THE GRAHAM CO'Y.

Napanee, Ont.

Remember the Pro-spective Euchre, in aid of Red Cross, on Tuesday evening, May 16th, in the Armouries.

On page four of this issue will be found an interesting letter from Coun. Graham in reference to raising $10,000 to build certain new roads. This is a question of much interest to every citizen and we would advise you to look it up and read it.

The late Archdeacon Carey, of Kingston was an old Napanee boy. After the burial service in the Cathedral on Saturday last, his remains were brought to Napanee for interment, the Bishop of Kingston and a number of the clergy taking part in the service at the grave.

The home of Mrs. Abraham Hagerman, Odessa, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday noon. The cause of the fire is not definitely known, but it is expected that it originated from a defective chimney. The loss, which will amount to about $700, was fully covered by insurance in the British American Company.

Notice is hereby given to Daughters of the Empire that Inspection of the N.C.I. Cadets will take place this Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock on the Collegiate Campus. The "U. E. L." Chapter, I.O.D.E. are expected to be present, and will furnish light refreshments to the Cadets after Inspection. The Committee of Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work, are also asked to attend.

Samuel Hare, an inmate of the House of Industry, Kingston, and a former resident of Tunworth, died in Kingston on Wednesday. Mr. Hare was a veteran of the Crimean war and his funeral took place in Kingston on Thursday under the auspices of the Crimean Veterans Association with military honors. Mr. W. G. Wilson, County Clerk, received a telegram announcing his death, and on behalf of the warden and county, expressed to the Crimean Veteran's Association the county's appreciation of the action of the association in giving Mr. Hare a military funeral.

Over two years ago, John J. Fitzgerald, a farmer of Thurlow brought an action against the Canada Cement Co. for interfering with a lane connecting with his farm in Hungerford Township and got $1,500.00 damages. The company appealed it several times but on the second of this month the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa gave a decision in favor of Fitzgerald and ordered the company to pay all costs. It has gone all through the Canadian courts and may go to the Privy Council in England. W. C. Mikel, K.C., for Fitzgerald, W. N. Tilley, K.C., and W. B. Northrup, K.C., for the Cement Company.—Daily Ontario, May 5, 1916.

Bonnycastle Dale contributes the opening article to the May issue of Rod and Gun Magazine, published at Woodstock, Ont. by W. J. Taylor, Limited. "Tales of the Trappers and Hunters of 1914-1915" is the title of the article by this well-known writer who can always be depended upon to know what he is talking about when he writes of the creatures of the wild. Frank Yeigh, another well-known Canadian writer contributes "One Eye, Bunny and the Tenderfoot: The tail of a Trail," a story that depicts some of the idiosyncracies of the sturdy little pack ponies of the Mt. Robson region. There are a dozen or so other articles of interest before the regular departments, which are up-to-date and full of interest to the lover of out-of-door sports, whose equipment includes rod, gun, dog or trap.

JAS. MCKITTRICK, Clerk.

To Build New Roads.

The columns of THE EXPRESS are open to you if you would like to discuss the question, and we feel sure the members of the council will welcome a public discussion. The different roads leading into Napanee are not only in a bad shape, but are in a dangerous condition for traffic. The town council will, in the near future present a by-law to the people asking them to assent to the raising of $10,000 for the purpose of building new roads at these points. What do you think about it? Have you any suggestions to make?

District Meeting.

The Napanee District meeting will be held in Grace Church on Wednesday and Thursday, May 17th and 18th. The Ministerial Session will open Wednesday at 2 p.m., and the general Session on Thursday at 9.30 a.m. On Wednesday evening a public service will be held addressed by the Rev. Enos Farnsworth of Newburgh. Will the brethren see that the respective schedules are forwarded to the Statistical Secretary. The Rev. W. S. P. Boyce, according to Discipline.

Trinity Church Notes.

Next Sunday will be a day of exceptional interest in Trinity church. It will be "Go-to-Church" Sunday, when every family is expected to attend the services. The entire Sunday School should be present at the morning service. At the morning service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed and new members will be received. A general Fellowship meeting will be held in the Sunday School hall at 9.45. In the evening a "Mother's Day" service will be held when all are expected to wear a white flower in honor of mother. Mr. Geo. Winterbottom, of Toronto, will preside at the organ at all the services.

Wonderful New Ensilage Corn.

The new Golden Glow ensilage corn is specially adapted to this county. In tests made on seven different farms last summer Golden Glow was the most successful. It produced a tall leafy stalk, and large ears. Best of all it matures in this climate, and if planted June 1st will make good ensilage early in September. Golden Glow corn originated in the State of Wisconsin, which is the greatest dairy state in the union. It is the most popular variety with dairymen, and its only competitor is Wisconsin No. 7. Golden Glow is a bright yellow corn, and will ripen in Lennox and Addington county, if planted, around May 20 to 21st. To enable farmers to try this new corn, Golden Glow, the Ontario Department of Agriculture have imported a bushel of kiln-dried seed from the experimental station, Madison, Wisconsin, and will give enough seed to any farmer who has a silo (or intends to build one this season) to plant 100 hills. If these 100 hills are cultivated carefully this summer, and the corn allowed to ripen, enough seed can be saved next fall to plant five acres of Golden Glow ensilage corn next season 1917. As we have only a limited amount of seed, farmers should apply at once to Mr. G. B. Curran, Agricultural Office, Napanee. Parties at a distance are advised to apply by post card. The corn will be mailed to applicants.

LENNOX AND ADDINGTON LEADS IN SILOS.

The report of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association just received shows that more silos were erected in Lennox and Addington county in 1915 than in any other county in Ontario.
This is a matter to be proud of. It shows that our farmers are progressive. In a short time every dairy farmer will have a silo, and will practice winter dairying. There is a good market for milk the year round now that our creamery is established. By having part of the cows fresh in the fall, and by feeding ensilage and clover or alfalfa hay, there will be an income from milk all winter, and milking can be done easier in the winter than in the summer, when the regular farm work as well as the chores must be done.

It is a proven fact that a cow that freshens in August or September will produce more milk in a year than a cow that freshens in the spring. Such a cow, it well fed all winter, on ensilage, hay and grain, will milk well all winter, and will continue to milk well when turned out on grass in May.
As soon as the grass dries up in July, the cow should be dried, and after a resting period of six weeks to two months, freshen again in the fall.
Milk cows that calve in the spring are under many handicaps. They milk well during May and June when the pastures are good, but almost go dry during July and August when the pastures are burned dry by drought, and once a cow fails in her milk will not fully recover during that lactation period, although cows do come up in milk flow if rains in September renew the pastures. The best method is to have a small summer silo, and feed the cows during the dry time in July and August.

Every farmer needs a silo.
